

Thousand Year Old Vampire: Sebastian de Auvergne

Skills

- Verse
- Seduction
- Drinking

Resources

- Lavish larders
- A copy of The Book of the Composition of Alchemy
- Gold bracelet from the only woman I ever really loved

Characters

- Beatrice (M), a young nun whose affections I covet
- Roland (M), my wealthier rival libertine
- Hugo (M), my faithful servant and confidant
- Isabelle (M), my favored courtesan whom I owe money
- Violet (I), a sorceress who cursed me.

Marks

- My face is like melted tallow, I wear a mask to hide my horrible visage.

- Memory

- I am Sebastian from the province of Auvergne born in the mid-12th century; I am a minor noble of no import with libertine sensibilities, bored with life and seeking ever extravagant delights.

- Memory

- Beatrice takes her vows; I send a poem imploring her to come to me instead and she doesn't reply.

- Memory

- A lonely night of melancholia; I drug the wine using a formula from The Book of the Composition of Alchemy and wallow in haunted visions.

- Memory

- Isabelle rebukes me for my debts; I placate her with fine foods and honeyed words.

- Memory

- The sorceress Violet is bathing alone in a lake; I try to take advantage of her and she melts my face and curses me with a lust for blood.
